1,600 stores to have a remodeling completed. Community residents and members of the chamber and Drivers helped welcome Safeway, its executives and the store's remodeling efforts to the community. In conjunction with its celebration, the store donated $3,000 to the Ogallala Middle School to be used toward the good of its students.—reported in the Keith County News.

Locals run the Lincoln Marathon

CURTIS—Locals Kim Stengel of Maywood and Amie Sugharoue of Wellfleet ran in the 36th annual Lincoln National Guard Marathon and Half-Marathon which took place May 5. The run, on a citywide course, started and finished on the campus of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. More than 7,000 runners in both races participated. Spectators lined Lincoln's Vine Street with cheers and homemade signs helping the runners along.—reported in the Frontier County Enterprise.

'Plan B' to move ahead on stalled lake project

ARNOLD—Some residents have been wondering if the Arnold Recreation Area and its lake will ever be the same after a planned lake restoration project went south, but Game & Parks Commission representatives told members of the village board that "Plan B" is now in place, and the lake project will be completed in about 90 days. Construction, which began in July of 2012, was proceeding very smoothly until last September when a portion of the west and south banks of the lake began to slough. Further investigation revealed that seven to 11 feet below the surface a thick band of loose material was seeping sideways and carrying the soil above it, which explained why previous attempts to deepen the lake haven't been successful.—reported in the Arnold Sentinel.

Callaway board opts to join super conference

CALLAWAY—Members of the Callaway Board of Education decided to join a new consolidated athletic conference. The board voted 5-0 at a recent meeting to approve joining what will be called the Loup Valley Sandhills Conference starting Sept. 1, 2014. The super conference will be a combination of the Sandhills and Loup Valley conference. Members of the Arnold Board of Education will also examine and vote on the proposal. If all the schools vote in favor, the
