

2010 chemigation training is free

Written by Gothenburg Times
Thursday, 18 February 2010 23:27 -

With chemigation season only a few months away, chemigators should check the expiration dates on their permits, said Dave Boxler, University of Nebraska-Lincoln entomology research technologist at the West Central Research and Extension Center in North Platte.

First time chemigators also need a license and five classes scheduled in the next three months will help them and those who need recertification to get ready. Check below for a class that fits your schedule:

March 11—Stapleton, Logan County Courthouse, 10 a.m. contact Bethany Johnston, (308) 645-2267 or (308) 636-2332

March 15—Broken Bow, Custer County Fairgrounds, 4-H Building, 1 p.m., Troy Walz, (308) 872-6831

March 18—North Platte, West Central Research and Extension Center, 1:30 p.m., Dave Boxler, (308) 696-6721

April 22—North Platte, West Central Research and Extension Center, 1:30 p.m., Dave Boxler, (308) 696-6721

May 20—North Platte, West Central Research and Extension Center, 1:30 p.m., Dave Boxler, (308) 696-6721

To pre-register for a class or for more information on chemigation training, please call the contact person listed at each training location. There is no fee for the training program.

To view a list of training sites statewide, log on here or here .

2010 chemigation training is free

Written by Gothenburg Times

Thursday, 18 February 2010 23:27 -
